

EDUC 560: Principles of Instruction

A study of effective teaching models and principles of instruction. A review of current trends in instructional design and the role of the teacher as an educational designer. Emphasis on instructional decision-making based on data, student needs, and relevant school factors. This course has applications for individual teachers and educational leaders.

Credits: 3